THE COORDINATED COMMUNITY RESPONSE

The Coordinated Community Response (CCR) is a model which supports the implementation and embedding of a whole-system response to meet the needs of survivors of domestic abuse and Violence Against Women and Girls. The model's premise is that every agency has a responsibility for identifying and supporting survivors, their children and holding perpetrators to account. The CCR brings together services, including health, housing, social care, criminal justice, education, communities and beyond, to form a coordinated system. The CCR model is named in the UK government's Domestic Abuse Statutory Guidance as best practice.

It shifts responsibility for safety away from individual survivors to the community and services existing to support them

WHAT IS THE CCR NETWORK?

The CCR Network aims to bring together VAWG and DA leads across a range of organisational settings to share, learn and support each other to develop and embed the CCR model in their local areas.

In 2008 we set up the Domestic Violence Coordinators Network (DVCN). DV coordinators were a relatively new post at the time and often an isolated and lonely one. The Network's aims were to support professionals to make domestic abuse partnerships more effective, facilitate networking, share good practice, current research and legal frameworks, and to lobby on local and national issues relating to domestic abuse.

Now the aims are similar but we are often working to a VAWG partnership rather than DA and our VAWG leads are also in health, the police, housing or the voluntary sector, as well as in local authorities.

What has been made clear against a background of increasing need and depleting resources is that the CCR approach is more important than ever. Our knowledge and experience of the theory and the practice of delivering a CCR means that we can facilitate the CCR Network as a space for sharing practice and information on how to effectively deliver a CCR in your local area. In our work across the UK (and Europe) we have seen a variety of practices and recognised common struggles amongst those with the responsibility to deliver their local CCR.

You told us, we listened.

Standing Together conducted a national survey of DA/VAWG Coordinators, Strategic Leads and Commissioners with a responsibility for DA/VAWG within local authorities or other statutory bodies. We were keen to find out what would be helpful to them in developing their practice and helping them deliver an effective CCR in their area.

You told us that you want regular updates on legislation and what is to happening across the country; to share learning and innovative practice; more opportunities to network and interact with each other; and to work together to lobby for national change. In response, we have redeveloped the CCR Network to meet your needs. From January 2025, the network will deliver monthly workshops/webinars focused around key themes, deliver a monthly newsletter and offer access to an online library with key resources to support you to implement the CCR in your local areas.

Q: What topics would you like the CCR Network to share information / learning on?

2025 CCR Network Events

We learned that you would appreciate more workshops, webinars and space for collaboration. To respond to this need, here are some of the webinars we have lined up in 2025!

January 2025 : Sign Health, The Deaf Health Charity
February 2025: Surrey SARC
March 2025 : STADA Health Team

More events to come!
